Suit filed in Speedway death

The family of Stephen Cox, who suffered fatal injuries last year while participating in a driving academy at the Kentucky Speedway, has filed a lawsuit alleging his racecar's steering wheel broke off in his hands as he sped around the track at more than 100 mph.

Cox, who was 30 when he died, was a pharmacist from Decatur Ind. He crashed into a concrete wall on September 14, 2014, while driving in the Rusty Wallace Racing Experience, which visits tracks around the country and charges customers to drive a racecar on a professional track.

Cox suffered massive head injuries in the crash, never regained consciousness and was pronounced dead a week later at University of Cincinnati Hospital. Gallatin County's EMS assisted the Speedway's emergency medical staff in treating Cox after the accident.

People who participate in driving schools such as the Rusty Wallace Racing Experience receive driving instructions and pay to either drive or ride as a passenger in racecars. Wallace's prices range from $249 for three laps to $1,899 for a full 50-lap NASCAR experience.

"In the horrifying moments before the crash, a panic-stricken Stephen desperately struggled to reattach the steering wheel and control the racecar," the family's lawyer, Gary Leppla, wrote in the lawsuit filed in United States District Court in Covington last Wednesday.

The lawsuit lists the Kentucky Speedway as a defendant along with the Rhode Island-based Rusty Wallace Racing Experience and its owner, Mark Ebert, an offshoot company called SITYS LLC, and a number of employees.

"Safety is the number one priority of Rusty Wallace Racing Experience, which takes extraordinary steps to keep its customers and

Former county coroner Jacque Hughes dies

Former Gallatin County coroner Jacque "Jack" Hughes, 62, died Sunday at his home on Johnson Rd.

Hughes, a Democrat, had served as coroner for six years when he resigned in May, 2013, for health reasons. His wife, Susan Hughes, was appointed to replace him and he then served as deputy coroner until her term ended in 2014.

Hughes was well known in Gallatin County. He retired from the City of Warsaw's water department in 2012, was an engineer for the County Fire Department and volunteered with the Gallatin County Emergency Medical Service.

Jacque Hughes

He is remembered as a man who ended every conversation with: "Let me know if there's ever anything I can do for you."

Jack Hughes was born in Colorado, was an U. S. Army veteran of the Vietnam War, had a long career as a professional truck driver and enjoyed collecting antique tractors.

His survivors include his wife, Susan Brown Hughes; his father, Norman Hughes; a sister, Melanie Stone; and stepchildren: Andrew Barr, Izabel Wheeler, Tommy Dunn, and Katelyn Dunn.

Visitation will be Thursday, June 18, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. and the funeral will be Friday, June 19, at 11 a.m. at the Garnett-New-McDonald Funeral Home in Warsaw. Burial will be in the Kentucky Veterans Cemetery North in Williamstown. Memorials should be made to the Gallatin County F.F.A. chapter.

Huber hopes meeting can curb drug abuse

Gallatin County School Superintendent Travis Huber has scheduled a public meeting to discuss the county's growing problem with illegal drugs. The meeting will be held this Thursday, June 18, at 4 p.m. at the Board of Education office.

"Our Board of Education has been talking about this serious problem that's facing nearly every community in the country," said Huber. "It's our belief that educating our young people about the negative effects of drugs and teaching them skills to resist the urge to experiment is part of the solution."

Huber has invited members of law enforcement, elected officials, health care professionals, first responders, members of the clergy and other community leaders to the meeting, which is open to the public.

He hopes to be able to develop a program designed to teach all students to make good choices. He feels this program should target students who have the highest risk to be involved in drug, alcohol and tobacco use.

"I hope people will come to the meeting and be part of the discussion to find a way to help the school system tackle what is considered an epidemic," said Huber. "I want to present a united front that says we care, we listen and we'll do whatever it takes to give our students a life free of addiction."

County seeks state funding for airport land

Long anticipated airport may become a reality

Gallatin County may soon have an airport.

At last Thursday's fiscal court meeting, magistrates voted to seek state funding to buy 500 acres near the Kentucky Speedway near Sparta to be developed as an airport. The county is negotiating with four property owners and an announcement is expected soon. The airport site is in the Park Ridge Road area.

"We're still in negotiations but we hope to have some good news very soon," said Gallatin County Judge/executive Ken McFarland. "We've agreed on a price and are negotiating with the state over funding."

For the past year, Kentucky Speedway owner Bruton Smith has publicly called for an airport to be built in the area. It would allow commercial jets to bring fans and participants to the Speedway during major events such as the annual NASCAR race.

There has been interest in building a regional airport in Gallatin County for decades, even before the Kentucky Speedway was built in 2000. Political and industrial leaders throughout this area have said there's a need for an airport to accommodate small and medium-sized jet aircraft. Several local boards and committees have also pursued the project over the years.

An official announcement with building plans for the airport could be announced as early as next week.

In other fiscal court business:

Both Fogg Road and the Napoleon Hills road will be paved and adopted into the Gallatin County road system. The court unanimously voted to take over maintenance of both at last Thursday's monthly meeting.

Fogg Road residents have debated amongst themselves for years whether to allow the county to pave their one-mile road with the cost added to their tax bills.

Judge McFarland said residents had recently

First time I've seen a dog smile

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

This is one of my favorite times of the year. June is here and that means all I can see on the horizon are the lazy, hazy days of summer: No snow storms, no Asian B Influenza and no IRS deadlines.

Yes, June always feels glorious to me and on Sunday, I made plans for the coming months with my loyal dogs, Lucky and Gingko.

First on my list was some sun. After a long, cold winter, warm sunshine feels great and I wanted to include lots of it on my list of summer activities.

I planned to catch a few rays mowing the lawn, cruising the river and walking around the golf course. But when I told Lucky and Gingko about that, they looked at me as if I had replaced their favorite brand of Mighty Dog with meatless soy burgers.

I knew they were right. Everywhere you turn these days people are warning you about the sun. It can turn your skin to shoe leather and can cause a multitude of serious health problems. The dogs made me promise to take it easy on the sun this summer.

So, I wiped sun off my list and replaced it with fishing. I told my pups nothing beats sitting on the riverbank under a shade tree waiting for the big one to nibble on your bait.

I thought for sure my best friends would approve. Instead of panting contentedly, however, they looked as though I was trying to steal their favorite Frisbee.

Then, I remembered the story I read in the newspaper last week. It warned people to stay away from fish in the river because they contain so many chemicals they'll make you grow hair on the bottom of your feet.

I told the dogs I understood their concern.

With tanning and fishing ruled out, that moved baseball to the top of the summer time "to do" list. I told the dogs about 100-mph fastballs, big hits, stolen bases and watching the Reds fight for a pennant. I was sure the dogs would approve of baseball.

When I looked over at them, however, all they could do was yawn. And then I remembered that was all I did the last time I caught a game.

I was becoming desperate but still, I wasn't ready to give up planning for a super summer.

The dogs seemed to think tennis was too strenuous, driving across the country too boring, grilling out too fattering and watching the girls at the beach too politically incorrect.

Finally, I looked Lucky and Gingko in the eyes and told them I was out of ideas. If I couldn't enjoy the sun, go fishing, watch baseball, or even eat hamburgers, that didn't leave much. I explained the only thing left to do this summer was to pull a comfortable lawn chair under the big maple tree in my front yard and sleep the days away.

And you know, I think that's the first time I've ever seen dogs smile.

We called him, 'Paw'

He never knew where the vacuum cleaner was parked in the house. He couldn't load the dishwasher. He couldn't do a load of laundry or run the dryer. If he tried to boil water on the stove, he would have burned it. In the eyes of the world today, they would label him a male chauvinist, but we kids just called him Paw.

This same man would bring Mom wildflowers when he'd come home from bush hogging or mowing hay. And if you wanted to get on his bad side quickly, say something off color or vulgar around his wife or kids. This was the man we called Paw.

He taught us boys to be young men by being an example and going to work every day because he had obligations to meet. He never missed work because he didn't feel well. He taught us how to deal with bullies at school and how to speak to the girls like the young ladies they were.

He knew where we were at all times when we were growing up. He taught us to show not just tell people we were Christians. And by the time we were 18, he'd taken the time to show and teach us to deal with everything from a broken heart to a bloody nose.

He had a hand that was like an iron club when you'd done wrong, but had a heart that was so loving and kind.

He taught me how to be a husband and a father—to love a woman I would call my wife as Christ loved the church and to raise the children God would bless me with.

He was my Dad and I called him Paw.

Criticism for Nunn at shelter

Editor's Note:

The following refers to last week's letter from Bobby Nunn about the Gallatin County Animal Shelter.

Dear Editor:

Mr. Nunn said in his letter he would welcome all volunteers at the shelter.

Really? I've been a volunteer at the shelter for several years and so have many other people. On the day Mr. Nunn took over the shelter, he told all of us not to come back.

I'm not allowed in the shelter and I know of no other volunteer who has been allowed in the shelter.

One lady was thrown off the property, which is public property, and was threatened with a call to the sheriff when all she wanted to do was foster a dog.

No one who stops at the shelter sees the dogs playing in the yards anymore which means they're being kept in their kennels all day.

No one know if the outside cats are being taken care of since one volunteer, who braved the threat of a call to the sheriff, found they didn't even have any water.

No volunteers are being asked to transport dogs to rescues which means they aren't going to any. The concerns about the shelter arise because no one is allowed in there.

It's not Bobby Nunn's shelter, it's our county shelter.

Triad door too heavy?

Dear Editor:

How can a building be handicap accessible when you can't open the front door because it's so heavy?

I literally broke open a couple of stitches in an incision trying to get into the new Triad building.

How can they justify spending all that money on a health care facility that the patients can't even enter without injuring themselves further?

I've been told to call ahead and someone will open the doors for me. This should not be necessary.

Not everyone has a cell phone to call when they arrive at the clinic. There has to be a way this can be remedied.

Kentucky Commentary

Remembering a great newspaperman

The best tributes to the late John Carroll, one of America's greatest newspaper editors who died on Sunday, will probably be written by people who worked with him—those whose journalism and careers he profoundly influenced, and whose work benefited from what Wendell Rawls called his "velvet touch, soft ear, careful tongue and steel spine."

But many who weren't on the same payroll as John, including those of us who competed against him and his staffs, can feel after his tragic death that we really did work with him—in that great, collective cause that all journalists should feel: public service that improves communities, states, our nation and our world.

"Kentucky is a better place because of him," community-journalism specialist Liz Hansen, recently retired from Eastern Kentucky University, said of our friend on Facebook.

That's one of the finest compliments that can be paid to a journalist, and John deserved it for what he did at the Lexington Herald-Leader, for Eastern Kentucky and for the state's educational system, including the University of Kentucky, where I work.

If there was a sacred cow in the Lexington news media, it was UK basketball, but John directed an investigation of payoffs in the program, and it won the newspaper its first Pulitzer Prize in 1986.

That also cost the paper advertising and circulation, and a gunshot fired through the pressroom windows amid protest rallies and a bomb threat. Nevertheless, the university changed its ways.

John's reaction summed up the difference between journalism and other trades: "In marketing, the idea is to manage the number of complaints down to zero. That's fine if you're making toasters, but a newspaper that gets no complaints is a dead newspaper."

Earlier, when John arrived to take the editorship of the Lexington Herald in 1979, I was a bureau reporter for the Louisville Courier-Journal, which covered all of Kentucky and enjoyed strong circulation in much of Eastern Kentucky, where the Herald and its afternoon sister, The Lexington Leader, were punching below their weight.

The Knight-Ridder chain, however, which had brought John in from the Philadelphia Inquirer, put new emphasis on covering the rural region at a time when we started sending in an early edition without late sports—even UK ballgames.

Under John and Publisher Creed Black, a native of Harlan in southeastern Kentucky, the merged Herald-Leader became a real force in Eastern Kentucky. That was important in 1989, when the state Supreme Court ruled the state school system unconstitutional—in a case brought by poor, rural districts.

The Herald-Leader's response was an investigative package called "Cheating Our Children," which turned over some long-stuck rocks in the region, as John might have said, and had as much or more impact on the education-reform legislation as the Courier-Journal did.

When John left to edit the Baltimore Sun in 1991, I was the Courier-Journal's political writer, and I can admit now that it was a bit of a relief to see him go.

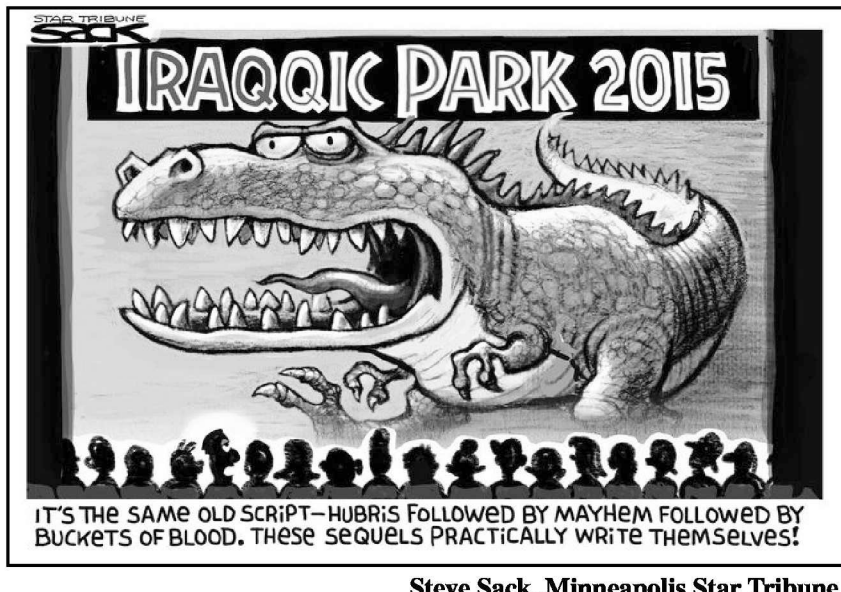

He knew how to recruit good people and manage them in ways that produced a newspaper that was in many ways fully competitive with the larger Courier-Journal.

In those days, the front line of Kentucky's journalism wars was on Shelby Street in Frankfort, in the shadow of the state Capitol, where our bureau's address was 614-B and the Herald-Leader's was 612-A.

John's successors maintained that competitive spirit, and both papers benefited from it—so did Kentuckians, especially those in the far reaches of the state.

The last decade's financial pressures on newspapers mean that rural coverage and circulation have greatly declined, at papers in Kentucky and elsewhere. Now my job is helping the smaller, rural news outlets pick up the slack. John Carroll will continue to inspire us.

The building will be used for exhibits at the fair and during the 127 Yard Sale among other purposes. It will be 50' x 100' structure, built to accommodate 350 people.

Joe Brown has been hired as architect and will soon seek bids to hire a contractor for the project.

The court unanimously approved the second and final reading of the new fiscal year budget. Magistrates were happy to hear the county's $500,000 fire truck will be paid off in September.

The county will join an eight-county Northern Kentucky effort to promote employment in this area. There will be testing among the counties to demonstrate workforce skill levels.

The court's July meeting will be held 6:30 p.m., Thursday, July 16.

Speedway

The Kentucky Speedway hasn't responded to the lawsuit.

The Cox family's lawsuit describes the amateur driving event as "an outrageously, inadequately operated activity."

At least two other drivers before Cox's death allege that steering wheels fell off in their hands while participating in racing experience events at other tracks.

Dave Buttram told the Associated Press he was driving at an event at the Lucas Oil Raceway in Indianapolis in June 2012, when his steering wheel broke off. He said he was only driving about 30 mph when he hit the wall and was not seriously injured.

A Spanish tourist named Jose Gonzalez alleged in a suit that his steering wheel fell off while he was participating in a racing experience event at Michigan International Speedway in July 2012. He crashed into a wall and broke both his legs, according to his lawsuit. A Michigan appeals court dismissed the case, finding Gonzalez signed a waiver and thus the company was not liable. Gonzalez has appealed the decision.

News from the schools

Summer Reading and Math Packets

•Gallatin County students entering kindergarten through fifth grade received their summer reading and math packets before the end of the school year. Parents need to see that students complete both the math and reading work before the end of summer break and return the packets to school in August when classes reconvene. Students who complete their work will be celebrating with a shaved ice party. The reading portion of the assignment is a log that requires the student to read eight books. The logs can be taken to any Barnes & Noble for a free book. The log or a copy of it also needs to be returned to school in order to participate in the shaved ice party. The math activities are games in the packet, which need to be recorded on the attached log, or 2000 points in Sumdog. The offices of both elementary schools and the Gallatin County Public Library have copies of the packet, if it is misplaced. Gallatin County Lower Elementary School library will be open 9 a.m. to 12 noon on June 15 and July 15. All K-5 students are invited to come in with families and take quizzes or play Sumdog. The quizzes will county for personal goals that students set next Fall.

Sports in Kentucky . . . by Bob Watkins

Indiana is a basketball state. Kentucky isn't. Hard to swallow isn't it, living this side of the Ohio River?

The Hoosier high school all-star boys swept another pair from its Kentucky Kousins last weekend.

Is 13 in a row and 92nd in 134 games dating to 1939. Last time Kentucky won a game in this series, the U.S. government was freezing Osama bin Laden's bank accounts.

Once upon a time Indiana-Kentucky matched was a mid-summer classic, clash of titans in America's heartland of hoops where kids dreamed to make the team. Basketball states is now singular.

Today, Indiana is still passionate about basketball, but all-star high school hoops in Kentucky has meandered down to a yawn, shrug, given way to pay-to-play summer camp, "I gotta be thinking about my NBA future," and video gaming in the shade.

Traveling by car across the Bluegrass State's 120 counties, I see a plentiful number of outdoor basketball goals but difference is, kids aren't using them, even ball goals with fresh nets.

To further the Kentucky-is-no-basketball-state argument, these sets of numbers.

✓Eight-hundred-thirty-four. In all the Commonwealth this was the reported attendance for last Saturday's all-star game at Transylvania University. 834 tickets sold.

✓Two. Jersey No. 1 for the first time in my memory, Mr. Basketball for both states were no shows. Vanderbilt-bound Camron Justice and Caleb Swanigan (Purdue).

In 59 years of Mr. Basketball, here's a first: A compliance office spokesman at Vanderbilt dictated Camron Justice could not play. He "is now considered a college athlete."

✓And One. Kentucky's best big man and Louisville signee Raymond Spaulding didn't bother. Practice and games, a no show. Apparently he "now belongs to University of Louisville."

Changing times. Probably time for Indiana to file for divorce. Take it's dedicated all-stars and series to Ohio or Illinois. Kentucky high schools' best making the team, representing the state, is not important.

On our side of the Ohio, on another level, a flicker of irony.

With enthusiasm for future gone tepid, preserving the past becomes a new option — a basketball museum.

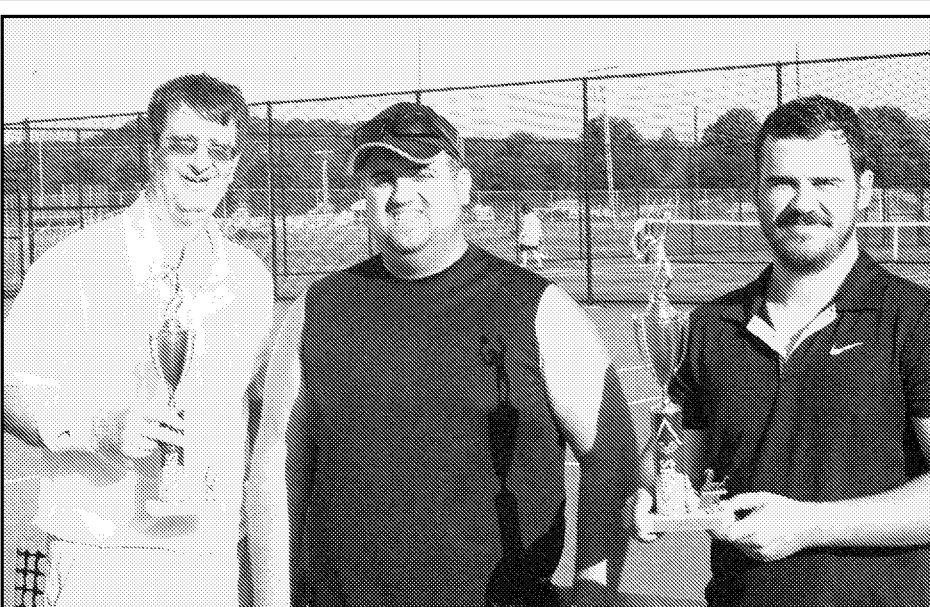

Ground-breaking and plans for a hoops museum located in Elizabethtown was announced in early June by Association of Basketball Coaches.

Geographically is sound, and downtown (with convenient parking) makes perfect a museum for fans to appreciate what has gone before — players and personalities and places, will project images of times when basketball was still a magical dream game in Kentucky.

With another historical fact in mind, I hope the museum in E'town enjoys a more sustained run of popularity than the once hot item one linked to University of Kentucky. Fan interest even around tradition-rich UK didn't last.

Today, given the abject decline of interest in the Kentucky-Indiana summer series, I hope officials have ever developing ideas to maintain interest for fan visits to E'town.

Maybe it will reignite a surge of pride on this side of the Ohio to lift Kentucky back to a place equal to Indiana again as a Basketball State.

This week we have two VERY important birthdays, a family reunion, a play attended, a 50th wedding anniversary, a 5-K walk for Make-A-Wish Foundation, fun at the Fair, a week in the Smokies, and wonderful moments with loved ones.

•Patsy Brown attended a birthday celebration for her great-nephew, D.J. Cayton, on Sunday. The party was held at the Warsaw home of D.J.'s parents, Aaron and Tracy Cayton. Other guests included his grandmother, Rita Sample, Tracy's nephew, Jon, and his friend, Chris, and Austin Sullivan. Guests were treated to hot dogs and hamburgers, potato salad, macaroni salad, and chocolate cupcakes with ice cream. After the party, Aaron and Tracy took D.J. and Austin to Gigi's for giant cupcakes, then on to see the new Jurassic Park movie. Aaron took D.J., Austin, and friend, Jacob, to a Florence Freedom game on Friday. They've been celebrating D.J.'s ninth birthday all week. HAPPY BIRTHDAY, D.J.!

•Mary Jane Day attended the Cross County Homemakers' annual outing on Wednesday. She was one of many who went to the Derby Playhouse in Clarks-ville, Ind., to see the play, "Social Security". She said it was so very funny that they couldn't stop laughing, and the buffet was excellent as well. The ladies who accompanied Mary Jane were: Melanie Stewart, Barb Finrock, Marie Allison, Angie Morris, Janet McGaha, Marcy Cozart, Sue Kemper, Jackie Acuff, Gail Deatherage, April Meyung, Mary Robinson, Roberta Brinkley, Lois Edmondson, Doris Howard, Betty Wright, Beth Oldendick, Sue Johns, Beth Lynn, Dean Wilson, and Bonnie McKee.

•Friday evening, Mary Jane traveled to Cincinnati in order to attend the 50th wedding anniversary party for her very close friends, Donna and Jim Bischoff. She and her sister, Betty Jean Valentino, went to grade school and high school with Donna. Mary Jane was thrilled to see other school friends at the celebration and enjoyed reminiscing with Donna. Sunderhaus, Charlene Wilmes, Charlene Frye, Bob Plum, Sandra Meyers, Holly and Paul Yeager, and Emily and Tom Niehaus. She said it was so great to see them, and they all decided to get together more often.

•Saturday morning Mary Jane participated in the 5-K walk at Sawyer Point for the Make-A-Wish Foundation with Sherri and Randy Ferguson and their granddaughter, Kaydence Berger. She said it was a pretty hot morning, but they managed to walk the 3.1 miles. Sherri and Randy do this every year in loving memory of their son, Adrian, who lost his battle with leukemia in 1991 at the age of 10. Their "wish trip" with him to Disney World in 1987 gave Adrian and their family a much-needed break from the reality of his disease. The walk is their way to "give back", and the Fergusons are very determined to do that. Saturday afternoon, Mary Jane was able to see her grandson Blayne's second ball game, where his team split a double header with the Gallatin County Wildcats.

•Debbie and James Human had a great weekend with children and grandchildren. The grandkids showed their horses at the Carroll County fair. Debbie's daughter, Carrie, granddaughter, Lindsey, and grandson, Donovan, came in from Mt. Washington. Donovan won second place in the barrel race, granddaughter Savanna won first place, and grandson Colten won third place. It was a big night for Debbie's kids, and they are all thrilled. The Humans also enjoyed a visit from their Tennessee family members. Debbie said it was just a wonderful fun-filled weekend.

•Betty and Boyd Lionberger have just returned from Boyd's family reunion in Independence, Missouri. They left last Wednesday with Boyd's sister and brother-in-law, Carol and John Horner, who had been visiting with Betty and Boyd for a few days. They spent Wednesday night at a Comfort Inn in St. Louis before driving on to Independence, arriving at the Higher Ground Hotel at about 2 p.m. Boyd said it's a very grand hotel, and is right across the street from the Truman home. Friday morning after the complimentary breakfast, Betty and Boyd attended a meeting outlining the activity itinerary for family members who wanted to participate, which even included a mule-drawn wagon. Betty and Boyd chose to spend their time at the ancestry library and visiting with the family. Friday evening found everyone gathered at the Englewood Cafe for an excellent dinner. Saturday evening was the main dinner and business meeting, where it was decided that the next reunion would take place in 2017 in Kingswood, Texas. Boyd said it was a great weekend, and he and Betty really enjoyed themselves. In all, there were about 40 family members there, some traveling from as far away as Nevada and Massachusetts for the occasion. Boyd tells me he was the oldest one there and proud of it! Daughter Julie Hamilton and granddaughter Kristina Turner drove to Independence to pick them up, and Boyd said he and Betty really appreciated that. They had a great time, but are glad to be home, and Boyd was getting ready to do yard work when I spoke with him.

•Diane and Ron Young and their son, Jeffery, daughter-in-law Michelle, and grandkids, Jeffery and Lila, just returned from a week in the Smoky mountains where they rented a beautiful log home. On Thursday before they left, they took Ronald and Brittany to supper at the Belterra buffet, since they could not get time off work to go with them, and stayed home to babysit the dogs. Diane's nephew, Justin, and his wife, Missie, spent the weekend and met up with the Youngs a few times (it was their one-year anniversary). Diane's cousin, James, and his wife were there to meet them for the weekend also, and took them to places they had never seen in the Smokies. James is an avid hiker, and on Saturday they went for miles on a dirt road and Diane said it was beautiful! She and Ron took everyone to the Dixie Stampede and they all absolutely loved it! Ron rode go-carts with the children while Diane took pictures. They played hill-billy golf and another putt putt. Of course they did some shopping, eating out, and lots of other fun things. They all just had a wonderful time.

•Neighbors, Wyatt and

Rachael, stopped in for a visit when the Youngs got home and ate some chili with them. Diane finally began painting her kitchen and Ron had to help finish. She went to a 31 Premier party on Saturday and out to lunch at Quaker Steak and Lube with friend, Lori, then shopping for a baby mattress for Ron and Britt, took it to them and visited awhile. Diane visited with her mother on Monday, and has asked that we keep her brother, Ed, in our prayers, as he had surgery on Tuesday.

•My neighbor, Randall Beach, just celebrated his 40th birthday. HAPPY BIRTHDAY, RANDALL

Planting by the Signs

by Phil Case

Here's this week's information for those of you planting your garden by the phases of the moon and signs of the zodiac.

While we're running a bit behind in rain now and a lot ahead on heat, your garden may be getting a little dry — but not as dry as where I live in central Kentucky. Just keep and eye on that.

These are the last few days of Spring with Summer officially beginning at 12:38 p.m. Sunday, which is also Father's Day so two things to celebrate! Sunday will also be the longest day of the year or, if you prefer, the day when the sun shines the most.

After Sunday the days begin to get shorter as we move toward the first day of winter, Dec. 21, thankfully still six months and a lot of summertime away!

The moon moved to the light phase Tuesday morning and will remain there until the full moon on July 1, 10:20 p.m. During this time be planting only those veggies that produce above the ground, realizing there's still plenty of time to "make garden," as the old folks say, and from what I've seen there are still plenty of transplants and, of course, seed, available.

The signs of the zodiac find the very fertile sign Cancer (the breast) in force the remainder of today (Wednesday) and all day Thursday. This would be a perfect time for any and all above-ground producers.

But, alas, all good things must end for a couple of days as the killing sign Leo (the heart) comes to rule on Friday and Saturday. No planting should take place when this killing sign is in force. It's not that your plants will drop over dead but rather they won't do nearly as well as they would in a fertile sign — and they may drop over dead!

Following the Leo days we'll enjoy our monthly series of flowering signs beginning with Virgo (the bowels) on Sunday through Tuesday followed by Libra (the reins) on June 24-25. These are "flowering days" and flowers planted when they are in force should bloom and do so abundantly.

It's back then to a fertile sign ruling with Scorpio (the secrets) in force June 26-27 followed by our second run of Sagittarius (the thighs) days to wrap up the last three days of June. The light moon remains in force through June and most of July 1.

Discount parking available for August's Kentucky State Fair

In its May meeting, the Kentucky State Fair Board unanimously approved selling advance parking for the 2015 Kentucky State Fair at a discounted rate.

Beginning in early June, fairgoers can pre-purchase parking for $5 per vehicle. Parking purchased during the Fair at the Kentucky Exposition Center is $8.

Advance tickets will also be available at a discounted rate. Children ages 6 to 12 and seniors 55 years and older are $4. Adults 13 years and older are $8. Infants and toddlers 5 years and under are free, an age increase from previous years.

In another change, advance parking and admission will be available for purchase at all Ticketmaster outlets including Kroger and Wal-Mart locations.

Admission and parking can also be purchased online at kystatefair.org. Tickets purchased online and at Ticketmaster outlets will include a $1.00 handling fee.

In a statement, Kentucky State Fair Board Chairman Dr. Mark Lynn said, "Our board has listened to our attendees and we are pleased to offer the opportunity for fairgoers to save even more. Attendees who have pre-purchased will find that the traffic flow will be much smoother and allow for quicker access to all of the fun that the Fair offers."

The 2015 Kentucky State Fair is August 20-30 at the Kentucky Exposition Center. For more information about the Kentucky State Fair, visit www.kystatefair.org or follow us on Facebook and Twitter.

Farmers Feeding Options

Kentucky cattle farmers have reaped the benefits of research conducted over the past 20 years at the University of Kentucky Agriculture, Food and Environment.

That research, conducted by Roy Burris, UK extension beef specialist, showed that producers could safely feed soy hulls to their cattle without losing any feed value. Soy hulls are the seed coats of soybeans and a by-product of soybean meal and soybean oil production.

Burris began his research in 1996 after discovering that all soy hulls were sent overseas. The hulls contained highly digestible fiber for cattle. Burris thought they could work well as a supplement with cattle, especially those already on a high-fiber, pasture-based diet, compared to supplementing their diets with corn, which contains high amounts of starch.

"Our feeding trials showed that soy hulls could replace corn on a pound-per-pound basis, especially with cattle on forage-based diets," said Burris, who is based at the UK Research and Education Center in Princeton. "This was because we weren't shifting those rumen bacteria that aid in digestion of fiber to those that digest starches."

In the feeding trials, the cattle liked and readily consumed the soy hulls without any acidosis or founder. The results of the research were very popular with Kentucky beef cattle farmers, who readily accepted them.

"It's a by-product that really became a co-product and added value to the soybean crop," Burris said.

Kentucky producers now use all of the soy hulls produced by the state's soybean farmers, which is around 120,000 tons of soy hulls each year. The success of feeding soy hulls has also led to the expansion of feeding other by-products to cattle including corn screenings, wheat screenings, distillers dried grains and cotton seed hulls. It also keeps the cattle from competing with humans for food.

Sun Safety Tips

Provided by your
Gallatin County Emergency
Management Office
Brandon Terrell, Director

Protecting your skin from the sun's damaging rays is vital for a number of important health reasons.

Melanoma, one of the most deadly of all skin cancers, is increasing faster than any other group, soaring by 50 percent in young women since 1980. It is the most common form of cancer for young adults (25-29 years old) and the second most common cancer in adolescents and young adults (15-29 years old). However, if caught early, melanoma can be effectively treated.

Here are the top ten steps you can take to protect your health.

- When possible, avoid outdoor activities during the hours between 10 AM and 4 PM, when the sun's rays are the strongest.

- Always wear a broad-spectrum (protection against both UVA and UVB) sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of 15 or higher.

- Be sure to reapply sunscreen frequently, especially after swimming, perspiring heavily or drying off with a towel.

- Wear a hat with a 4-inch brim all around because it protects areas often exposed to the sun, such as the neck, ears, eyes, forehead, nose, and scalp.

- Wear clothing to protect as much skin as possible. Long-sleeved shirts, long pants, or long skirts are the most protective. Dark colors provide more protection than light colors by preventing more UV rays from reaching your skin. A tightly woven fabric provides greater protection than loosely woven fabric.

- To protect your eyes from sun damage, wear sunglasses that block 99 to 100-percent of UVA and UVB radiation.

- Consider wearing cosmetics and lip protectors with an SPF of at least 15 to protect your skin year-round.

- Swimmers should remember to regularly reapply sunscreen. UV rays reflect off water and sand, increasing the intensity of UV radiation.

- Some medications, such as antibiotics, can increase your skin's sensitivity to the sun. Ask your doctor or pharmacist for more information about the medications you are taking.

- Children need extra protection from the sun. One or two blistering sunburns before the age of 18 dramatically increases the risk of skin cancer. Encourage children to play in the shade, wear protective clothing and apply sunscreen regularly.

Tough Mudder challenge coming to KY Speedway

Approximately 6,000 participants will descend upon Kentucky Speedway this June to participate in Tough Mudder, an obstacle course challenge that is the ultimate test of strength, grit, stamina and teamwork. Following highly successful events in Kentucky in previous years, Tough Mudder Kentucky will take place one June 27 & 28 and will offer a 10+ mile course featuring entirely new and updated obstacles.

"We are thrilled to be returning to Sparta for this year's Tough Mudder Kentucky," said Barry Shaw, Event Operations Manager at Tough Mudder. "Our strong partnership with the Sparta community was a key factor in the success of our previous Kentucky events. We look forward to building on that success to provide another life-changing event for local and visiting participants, as well as prove a positive economic impact on the region as Mudders travel from surrounding states and across the country to see what's in store for 2015."

Brand-new obstacles hitting the course in Kentucky this year will include "Dead Ringer," a transverse across a series of inclined pegs using handheld rings; and "Cry Baby," a tunnel crawl through a tear-gas-like substance.

Classic obstacles including slicked quarter-pipe "Everest" have been redesigned, with "2.0" versions offering new twists on the classic challenges, pushing participants to work as a team.

"The obstacle innovations we've made for 2015 will encourage participants to work together more than ever before, while still providing the personal challenge people have come to expect from Tough Mudder," said Nolan Kombol, Head of Innovation at Tough Mudder. "We're thrilled to provide a fresh experience for returning Mudders and 20 new reasons for first-timers to finally take the plunge."

Tough Mudder events have wide appeal—participants (known as "Mudders") range from veterans to business executives to pageant queens to 81-year-old grandfathers. More than 90% of Mudders sign up as part of a team. And for many Mudders, Tough Mudder is more than just a weekend event—it's a lifestyle.

More than 5,000 Mudders have even had the Tough Mudder logo permanently tattooed on their bodies.

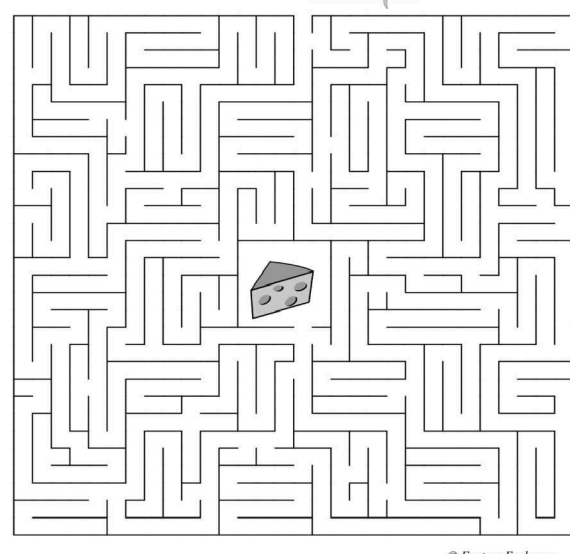

Tough Mudder is the largest supporter of Wounded Warrior Project and its mission to assist severely injured veterans. To date, Tough Mudder participants have raised more than $6.5 million for Wounded Warrior Project.

Registrations for Tough Mudder Kentucky are now open; spectator tickets are also available. For those interested in finding other ways to get involved—and getting a discount on future registration—Tough Mudder is currently on the lookout for volunteers to be a part of the action.
